How to disable auto spell check in Chrome/Gmail? 1 Recommended Answer

How can I disable/switch off auto spell check in Google Chrome? I'm using Gmail but writing in another language than English. So I get a lot of red underlines, which are a bit annoying. Cannot find it in settings. Any suggestions?

The Language section in Advanced settings of Chrome's Settings has no option - as far as I can see - to disable auto spell check. You can choose a language, but nothing about auto spell check.

Hi there,

Thanks for posting in the Chrome Help Forum.

To disable the Spell Checker in Chrome please follow the steps below:

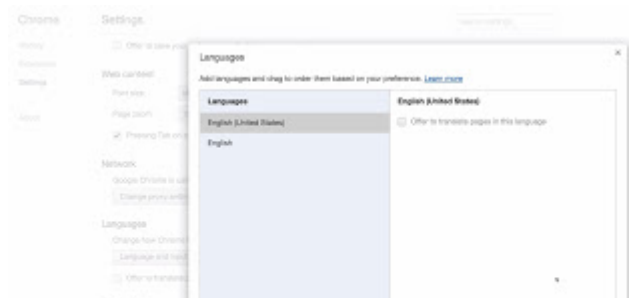

1. Go to Chrome Menu
2. Click on "Settings"
3. Click "Show Advanced Settings"
4. In the Languages section, click on "Language and input settings"
5. Scroll down and uncheck box for "Enable spell checking"
6. Click "Done"

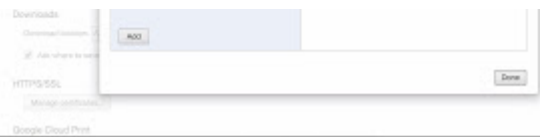

Hope this helps.

Hi Paula, thanks for your reply. It is the exact same location I've looked for this option. But apparently, my version of Chrome (47..., latest), doesn't have the 'Enable spell checking' checkbox, see screenshot attached.

Hi again

Thanks for responding and the information. It is very interesting that this feature is not there. I will bring this up to the team for further insight.

Hi Paula -- any news? This is still missing, and still aggravating in other languages.
