Get "xs" value from Facebook cookie

⟨⟩ facebook-cookie.MD

How to get the xs value from Facebook cookie with Google Chrome:

1. Open www.messenger.com
2. Open Developer Tools
3. Click "Application" tab
4. Click, "Cookies" in the left panel
5. Click "www.messenger.com"
6. Copy the value of "xs"

Word of warning

This value is to be used in `fb-sleep-stats` config file (development.json). But PLEASE do not share this with anyone else, since it provides access to your Facebook account.

Is there a way to do the same thing with Firefox?

frenchiveruti commented on 22 Feb, 2016

Ok, so here's the way to do it on Firefox:

1. Press F12 to open Dev Mode.
2. Go to config (the gear on the top of dev tools, on the right side).
3. On "default dev Tools" (the left column) you need to enable the option "Storage"
4. Then, simply open the new storage tab on the dev tool bar, and go to "cookies"
5. Click on www.messenger.com.
6. Copy (WITH CTRL+C) the value of xs.

I have installed EditThisCookie and it's really useful in this cases.

@bateren Log into messenger.com with your account. Use EditThisCookie. Press `xs` and it will give you the value.
